MESSAGE OF GOVERNOR PAT

TOP.
The message of Governor Patton, of Alabama, shows that Southern inertia is yielding, little by little, to the solid pressure of Northern opinion. Gov. Patton recognises the tendency of Southern employers to worry the freedom and the necessity of some measures of summary redress.

In reference to contracts with freedmen, there have been some exceptions, but of bad character, in regard to the necessity of the freedom of contract. These exceptions are what employers of freedmen by capital and labour, sought and even created precedents for finding fault with the freedom of contract, and for exacting a payment of a violation of contract on the part of the freedmen. The only remedy left to the freedmen is to sue for their wages, this is so far as to be scarcely worth pursuing.

For such injustice as this, a remedy should be provided. It could be found in a law which would make payment of wages a specific mode of enforcing payment for labor to the master under consideration. I especially invite your attention to this subject.

Moreover the Governor has found out that the Southern ought to be taxed.

The right to sue in courts in certain cases, was extended to freedmen by a recent session. The law authorising this kind of testing, however, has not yet been passed. The experience has demonstrated that it is proper that the freedmen should be permitted to sue in the courts in cases where they are interested, and where there is every interest to be had in the case, and are reasonably opposed to influence this class of witnesses. But even with these strong temptations to sue, the freedmen have not been found willing to do so. They are not yet willing to sue before us, that the public would be promoted by removing all restraints upon the action of the freedmen in the Federal courts. Their evidence, that of all other witnesses, would be easily weighed by the courts, and estimated at its proper value.

It is to be regretted that the energy and efficiency of the Freedmen's Bureau, and incidentally pays a high tribute to the unfitness of the government to the rebel papers who never cease to charge it with meanness, rapacity and cruelty.

The amount of destination in the South has been, and still is not only distressing, but abominable. The freedmen, who have been so banished from their supplies, have been liberal in their contributions, and the State has done its utmost, but with all these there has not been a sufficient amount to meet the necessities of our destitute population.

The Federal government commenced the distribution of rations in the month of August.

Up to the 15th of September last, a period of seven months, the amount of rations issued was three million seven hundred and eighty-nine thousand seven hundred and fifty-four pounds, and the amount issued from official statistics which have been reported to the department. They show an average distribution of rations of one hundred and twenty-five pounds per month. Of the persons receiving rations, there were one hundred and twenty-five thousand, and the average per month (21,700). The number of white people receiving rations was one thousand, the proportion of two to one. In addition to these rations furnished, liberal contributions have been made in the shape of provisions by private individuals and relief associations, and the amount of rations thus kindly extended, has been a Grand total of one hundred and twenty-five thousand.

Gov. Patton, of course, opposes the adoption of the Constitutional Amendment. He thinks the provision of the Constitution of the United States, and of Alabama, that "no person shall be deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law," is a sufficient safeguard for the rights of persons and property, ignoring the fact that in spite of that provision, the Supreme Court of the United States once decided that "negroes have no rights which white men are bound to respect." That the whole statutory code of Alabama is on the same principle.

Of the second section, he says:

The practical effect of this section upon the Southern States, would be a loss of nearly half of the representatives to which they are now entitled, those who are now in the House of Representatives to negroes. But these would be lost, and any diminution in the Northern States, at the same time, is a small negro population.

Ex. 1. The Governor, in a meeting of the delegation of southern representatives to Congress for a class of the population whose interests are in no wise represented, except like Paddy's drunks "by contraries." This third section makes Patton mad, and he paints his horrors in this vivid style:

The adoption of this amendment would vibrate nearly in every part of the unrepresented States. It would summon judges, legislators, and other public functionaries, and the states, and thus, the Southern government would be completely broken up. Indeed, they would be in a state of anarchy, as the Northern States, at the same time, is a small negro population.

Which suggests the query whether it is considered an essential qualification for office in the South.

The Governor does not notice the fourth section, providing for the repudiation of the rebel debt, and his silence on this head is decidedly significant. His is always upon the test oath, and, of course, advises the rejection of the amendment.

IMPARTIAL SUFFRAGE AS A SUPPLEMENT, NOT AN ALTERNATIVE.

Dr. O. A. Brownson has written a letter to the editor of the New York Tribune, in which he urges upon Congress and Congress to steer clear of all mere reconstruction schemes, and to adhere to the constitutional amendment already proposed by Congress and accepted by the people, the best and safest basis of restoration now attainable, and as containing provisions indispensable to the national security and well-being. Up to this point the common sense of the country is undoubtedly in full accord with Dr. Brownson. The people will never consent to repudiate this fundamental reform contemplated by this amendment, or to substitute for it any inadequate and illusory basis of restoration as Greely's alternative. Dr. Brownson, it seems to us, quite right in opposing any attempt to subvert the Congressional by what may be called Greely's plan—for it is his, at least, by adoption.

But on the other hand we do not believe the public opinion of the country will, because we do not think it ought to rest short of the establishment under constitutional guarantees of the principles of impartial suffrage.

Dr. Brownson, it seems to us, quite right in opposing any attempt to subvert the Congressional by what may be called Greely's plan—for it is his, at least, by adoption.

The question of suffrage, under the Constitution as it is, belongs to the States severally, and does not concern the Federal Government. The people of the States, and Congress, and the authority to legislate on the subject, are all in the States. The Federal Government, by the authority of Congress, would have the beauty of Federal system, destroy the equilibrium between the States, and tend to consolidation or centralization, and to the subversion of the Federal Government. It would, in principle, completely revolutionize the Constitution of the United States.

Now, if the Constitution should empower Congress to enact an uniform law of suffrage, applicable to all citizens of the United States, possessing the qualifications of voters for Representatives in Congress or Presidential electors, it is difficult to comprehend how the exercise of such a power would mar the beauty of our federal system. It seems to us

MEXICO.

On the assumption that there are five millions of loyal adults in that free and happy land, there cannot be less than five million of different opinions regarding the present position of the country. The future prospects of our country, the future of the probable political institutions, and the results which will result between this government, France and Mexico, growing out of the affairs in that country. This estimate is intended to cover the cases of those who have no opinions whatever on the subject as well as those who hold to two or three, and cannot be far out of the way. And that there is sufficient ground for a man to hold two or three different opinions concerning the matter, will hardly be denied by those who have read all the contradictory assertions, pro- and anti-slavery statements of the newspapers lately.

In addition to the startling assurance put forth from the State Department, in countless occasions, during these two years, that Napoleon would soon withdraw his troops from Mexico in deference to our wishes, correspondents and quid nunc have recently undertaken to give the exact date for the evacuation, which was to be accomplished all at one time, and that time not later than the middle of January; but no transports have yet made their appearance at Vera Cruz. Marshal Bazaine is said to be making preparations to supply the country for months to come, and the telegraphic morning reports that Napoleon has concluded not to leave before Spring. Maximilian, it is not long since, would abdicate and return to Europe; then the new, came that he had abdicated; afterwards that he would remain in Mexico after the troops left; again that he had sold his traps and embarked at Vera Cruz for faderland; while now it appears that he is yet in the city of Mexico. In regard to our own participation in the affairs of the country, we have had a series of actions fast that we were to guarantee the French claims and receive Lower California, containing about 200,000 square miles, as a consideration; soon after, the story was positively denied, that we were to guarantee anybody's claims to anything, or that we were to get any land, and now, Mexican correspondents assert with great vehemence, that Juarez will not consent to alienate any portion of the public domain. It would consist, it is said, in the right of the English King, to sell, or to give, or to lease, or to have no col-

In the course of New York in a winter evening for information, has brought out the fact that the expenses of the wife and children of a millionaire in this city, aside from a costly furnished mansion, are $100 per day.

—A well known physician (who, by the way, is a native of Boston) has a glass of beer every day, when some one asked, "Why is that like a dilated vessel?" The medico man paused, and being unable to tell why, was informed that "it was going to dry Dye." Several nice words followed.

—In New York, a man says he is a fast follower of the modern fads; he is simply infatuated. At the exhibition of a new temple in Cincinnati, costing $20,000, the preacher, Dr. W. W., proclaimed a deliverer in a coming Messiah and in rapture. "There are not all Israel which are of Israel."

—A story comes from Wisconsin that some one has been so sick since his convalescence in "my pony," that the family dog did not recognize him, and not seeing or smelling could induce the quadruped to attack him.

Respectfully, G. H. HEWITT.

MISSING ISSUE

Date: Nov 30 1866

This road is now open to Belle Plaine, and the cars are making trips for freight and passengers both ways daily with great regularity. The daily train to the East, carrying the mail and express, also goes over the Valley road. The first cars do not arrive, three days later trains are run to Minneapolis, over the Valley and Central roads, making, in all, ten daily arrivals and departures from the depot at West St. Paul. The importance of this road to St. Paul is hardly appreciated by the citizens. Between the depot and the city, from early morning until dark, there is a continued stream of omnibuses, express wagons, wagons, drays and footmen. Much the largest part of the trade of this city is now done over this road.

In view of the ordinary mode, the company has commenced the transportation of fire wood, and will be able to supply from their stock of dry wood now along the line of the road, a hundred cords daily for some months to come. Arrangements have been made to furnish any quantity of wood at the Depot by the single cord or car load.

The Valley road is a home Company, controlled by our soundest business men, and conducted on the best financial basis. Commencing with a donation from the State of forty acres of graded road, with a similar amount from the United States, the present company determined to build the road with money. Over five hundred thousand dollars have been paid in by stockholders and expended on the road to West St. Paul and Shakopee, and nearly as much more has been raised in preferred stock to carry the road to Belle Plaine. Bonds have been made to the extent of sixteen thousand dollars per mile of the road, but none have been disposed of. The company are now maturing plans for money to carry forward the work to Le Sueur, St. Peter and Mankato.

The route beyond Belle Plaine is not definitely fixed. We understand that large donations are offered by citizens of Sibley county to induce the company to cross the river at Henderson and go to St. Peter on the west side of the river. It is claimed that a larger number of people will be accommodated by crossing at Henderson than elsewhere; that the construction will cost less; besides, on the west side the company has more land to be benefited than at the east, and the route must be extended to reach St. Peter, the company will have strong inducements to cross where the entire cost of a bridge will be borne by citizens interested. The only objection to such a line would probably come from Le Sueur and citizens on the east side, but we have not heard that they have interested themselves in any way in the matter.

The company will doubtless look to its interests without regard to point of the line, and the most vigilant and liberal towns will give that which will make, or if lost, the route certain.

The company is anxious to extend their road early next summer through the woods to Le Sueur, and to raise money therewith, will at first prefer stock, on which a dividend is guaranteed of five per cent, half yearly, free of Government tax and secured by deposits of first mortgage bonds and by mortgage on lands. The security is ample and absolute, the divided liberal, and the early sale of stock will secure the early completion of the road. If St. Paul retains her position as the leading business town of the State, she must do something for roads and manufacturers. Let our merchants and property men look to their interests in time.

THE IMPARTIAL SUFFRAGE

When the Chicago Times shot madly from its sphere the other day, and declared itself for the policy of "universal amnesty for impartial suffrage," through separate States, we were not surprised to find the action of the Grand and a cheat, aunning device, as indeed the Times bluntly confessed it was, for restoring the Democratic party and the rebels to power in return for a verbal concession of principle, in the practical application of which the nation was to be adroitly cheated. To leave the question of impartial suffrage to the party and those that stood to it, was the most cynical and unscrupulous device, as indeed it was, for the restoration of the Democratic party and the rebels to power in return for a verbal concession of principle, in the practical application of which the nation was to be adroitly cheated.

THE CANADIAN GOLD MINES.—The Canadians have difficulty in determining whether or not the reported gold in the Pacific, which occurred week before last, is to be regarded as the action of the Grand and a cheat, aunning device, as indeed the Times bluntly confessed it was, for the restoration of the Democratic party and the rebels to power in return for a verbal concession of principle, in the practical application of which the nation was to be adroitly cheated.
